Professional Learning Program

Managing Regulation, Enforcement and Compliance

Honouring the role of the professional regulator

Government officials and other professionals with regulatory, enforcement, compliance or risk management responsibilities face distinctive challenges. With budgets and expectations growing, it's more important than ever for regulators to know how to deliver effective risk control, manage compliance and solve complex problems.

This unique workshop recognises the important role regulatory practitioners play. It explores the management and operation of regulatory practice in agencies with a focus on social regulation, including safety, health and security.

Learn from leaders in the field

The program is headed up by Professor Malcolm K. Sparrow, a former senior British Police Officer and expert in regulatory and enforcement strategy, security and risk control, and will feature special guest presentations.

Dynamic program delivery

The program is delivered through a mixture of plenary presentations and small group discussions. A critical component of the program involves personal reflection upon your own professional experiences and sharing these examples in both small group and class sessions. You will leave with a better understanding of the pressures faced by regulators today and a broader appreciation of potential adaptations you might make in response.

Examine real-world case studies

You'll take a closer look at a range of cases sourced from different regulatory and enforcement domains. Each case is chosen for its ability to provoke, illuminate and define ubiquitous challenges and emerging approaches.

Get into the details of regulatory practice

Zoom in on core issues in regulatory practice, including measures of success, vigilance around novel or invisible risks, delegation, harm-reduction, using discretion to choose what to work on and responding to deregulatory winds and political pressures.
