An invitation to partner

The National Regulators Community of Practice (NRCoP) and Australia and New Zealand School of Government (ANZSOG) is inviting prospective organisations to sponsor the 2027 National Regulators Community of Practice National Conference (NRCoP).

Historically, the conference has attracted approximately 600 in-person and 200 virtual attendees. While final numbers are yet to be confirmed, this hybrid (in-person and virtual) conference offers a valuable opportunity to showcase your organisation and connect with regulators from Australia and Aotearoa New Zealand.

The ANZSOG auspiced 2027 National Regulators Community of Practice Conference – The Art and Science of Regulation: Reducing Harm and Delivering Public Value, will be held on 24-26 May 2027 at the Adelaide Convention Centre in South Australia.

The National Regulators Community of Practice (NRCoP) is an active network of over 8500 public sector regulators from all levels of government, regulatory sectors, professional backgrounds, roles, and levels of seniority, who are keen to learn from and with each other.

Its objectives are to support participants to become more professional and capable regulators and to promote the public value and importance of regulation as a key function of government and thereby, to deliver better citizen outcomes.

The NRCoP is governed by a National Board of senior regulators and it has local chapters in the Australian Capital Territory, New South Wales, Northern Territory, Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia. The NRCoP also welcomes attendance by Aotearoa New Zealand regulators through its partnership with the Ministry for Regulation.

Delegates will hear from international and local speakers from both regulatory practitioner and academic backgrounds as they focus on new regulatory designs and approaches for adapting to disruption and change in an evolving and increasingly complex regulatory environment. The conference program will provide a mix of inspirational speakers and interactive activities, providing delegates with a range of opportunities to hear new ideas, contribute views and network with regulatory peers.

Key themes to be explored, include:

- Conference theme: The Art and Science of Regulation: Reducing Harm and Delivering Public Value — Brings together the systematic use of evidence and professional judgement, the two components of effective regulatory practice, and measures both against the outcomes that matter: preventing and reducing harm and delivering public value.
- Sub-theme one: Risk-based regulation and regulatory intelligence — How regulators use risk frameworks, data, surveillance and frontline insights to understand harm, set priorities and choose proportionate responses, and how evaluation shows whether those responses worked.

- Sub-theme two: Regulatory capability in a digital age — How regulators regulate artificial intelligence and use it responsibly in their own work, including where it adds value, its limitations, and the safeguards that protect accountability and human judgement.
- Sub-theme three: Regulatory judgement and decision-making — How experienced regulators bring evidence, law, context and experience together to make proportionate, defensible decisions, explored through real cases and decision walkthroughs.

A dedicated online event platform will provide delegates with easy access to the program; speaker information; livestream sessions; sponsor profiles; exhibitor stand information and more. Delegates will also have opportunities to build connections during catering breaks, a network reception, a conference dinner and exhibitor displays.

Approximately 600 delegates are expected to attend in person, providing delegates with opportunities to network and make new connections. A virtual attendance option will also maximise accessibility.

Registrations are now open and we anticipate strong interest from employees who are currently employed by an organisation with a corporate membership of the National Regulators Community of Practice as well as non-members from the public, private or other sectors.
